

Small group facilitation requires adequate preparation, intentional use of active learning, monitoring of group dynamics, and intentional facilitation to connect, and embrace silence.

- Encourage Psychological Safety that learners say

Clinical reasoning

Encourage Participation: Use encouraging phrases such as “who would feel comfortable starting discussion” and “I would love to hear from a student who has not yet had the opportunity to share.”

Support Active Learning: Limit interruption of learners and encourage engagement among learners. Employ active learning methods such as:

- o Think-Pair-Share: Have learners think about the topic, pair up, share insights, and report to large group.
- o 1-2-
